NEWSPAPER "LIES" ARE THE PUBLIC'S LIES

The country newspaper editor and publisher certainly have to stand for a lot in this world.

In what other business on earth would somebody dare to offer the business man $100 for $1,500 of his reported in the news columns of "The American Press?"

What high brow or pedant would dare to appear before a meeting of big daily newspaper editors and advise them to make accuracy a part of their code of ethics? As if their practice was to fill their papers with lies!

The newspapers are as accurate to-day as the great mass of high-minded American editors, city and country, can possibly make them. Newspapers of the twentieth century are far more accurate than they were under your first Bennett, under Horace Greeley, or even under Dana, and fifty years hence they will have progressed to far greater accuracy than to-day.

Newspapers will be perfect in this respect when the time arrives that editors and reporters will not have to go to the public to get the news. The facts in news items are dug out of people who are supposed to know them. When they appear in the paper and are found to be untrue or misleading, it is practically always the fault of the person or persons to whom the reporter or editor went for his facts. This is particularly the case when you find inaccuracies in country newspapers.

And it isn't to be wondered at when it is remembered that, if you are a judge, you cannot get the same story of an event twice from a half dozen eye-witnesses all under oath, when not one person out of a dozen will correctly repeat a remark made in the presence of all of them.

Talk accuracy to an editor and you insult him! Because that is already the high aim of the vast majority of them.

LAST OF SOLDIER DEAD REACH AMERICA SOON

The last large shipment of remains of soldier dead, returned for burial under the Stars and Stripes, will be completed when the Armory Transport Cambria reaches New York March 30, with 1,224 flag-draped caskets. With the arrival of the Cambria the reverent task of the Quartermaster Corps of the Army of bringing home the bodies of those who fell in France, will be practically finished. Plans are already under way for appropriate services and ceremonies at the dock, to pay final tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice. After the Cambria lands her precious freight, approximately only 325 bodies will remain abroad to be brought to the United States for burial. Up to March 1, the Graves Registration Service of the Quartermaster Corps had returned to this country the remains of 44,418 of those Americans who died on foreign soil.
